Ditch Your "TO-DO" List: Who Do You Need TO BE?

We're often stuck in our to-do lists and they can feel never-ending and all consuming. Worse, they stop us from making the big changes that we so often want. We feel "too busy" to even think about such a change. Our to-do lists keep getting in the way. Luckily, it's not a lot of time that we need, it's simply a different kind of "to do" list. Who do you need TO BE to make the changes you want? Your "to be" list is so much more powerful than your "to do" list. Think about a potential "to be" list: I am going to be courageous, to trust myself, to be confident that I can handle whatever comes my way... and compare it with your current "to do" list. This webinar will help you identify what could be your "to be" list for right now and give you an insight into the power of coaching. Organized by HEC Life Project. Register.

Dealing with Conflict

While some of us enjoy a lively debate with colleagues and others prefer to suppress our feelings over disagreements, we all struggle with conflict at work. Every day we navigate an office full of competing interests, clashing personalities, limited time and resources, and fragile egos. Sure, we share the same goals as our colleagues, but we don't always agree on how to achieve them. We work differently. We rub each other the wrong way. We jockey for positioning. But disagreements don't have to be a source of unhealthy tension. How can you deal with conflict in a way that is both professional and productive – where it improves both your work and your relationships?
